Reyco Marine, Sault Ste. Marie's Marine and Small Engine Dealer, Launches New Website

For immediate release, Sault Ste. Marie, ON

Reyco Marine, a full-service marine and small engine dealership on White Oak Drive in Sault Ste. Marie, has launched a new website at reycomarine.com.

Owner Casey Davieaux built the business to serve local customers across marine repair, small engine service, lawn, snow, and ATV/UTV equipment, with authorised brands and in-house technicians under one roof in the Sault.

Reyco Marine has been part of Sault Ste. Marie's small engine and outdoor equipment landscape for decades. Over that time, the shop added dealer agreements, service capabilities, and staff as local demand grew. What started as a repair and parts operation became a dealership covering marine, lawn, snow, ATV, and UTV equipment under a single address on White Oak Drive. For Casey Davieaux, the growth reflected a consistent idea: customers in the Sault should not have to drive south to find authorised service and OEM parts for the equipment they use every season.

[CASEY QUOTE 1 : founding/legacy]

A Full Range of Services for Every Season

Reyco Marine handles service and repair across marine engines, small engines, lawn care equipment, snow blowers, and ATVs and UTVs. The shop is an authorised dealer for Mercury outboard motors, Princecraft boats, Toro lawn and snow equipment, Echo handheld power tools, EZGO vehicles, Cub Cadet outdoor power equipment, Hisun UTVs, and accessories from Minn Kota, Cannon, and Humminbird. R&J rounds out the brand lineup.

The shop's workload shifts with the seasons in a way that keeps the bays running year-round. April and May bring the first push of marine repair as Sault Ste.

Marie boat owners prepare for the water: winterization reversal, engine diagnostics, fuel system service, and water tests before launch. Summer keeps the shop busy with in-season repairs, parts orders, and warranty work for customers who want to stay on the water rather than wait in a queue. Fall brings winterization for marine equipment, storage preparation, and the first wave of snow blower tune-ups as temperatures drop. From November through March, the service calendar fills with snow blower repairs, engine overhauls, and small engine work that sat all summer and needs attention before the first snowfall arrives.

[CASEY QUOTE 2 : service philosophy]

The parts department stocks components and accessories for every brand Reyco carries, and the team handles warranty repairs for authorised products across the full lineup.

The People Behind the Counter

Aaron [LAST NAME PLACEHOLDER], Co-Owner and Service Manager, oversees the technical side of the operation. Lynn manages the parts department, with Ron supporting parts sourcing and customer orders day to day.

Technicians Lee, Damian, and Cody handle the hands-on repair and maintenance work across all equipment categories.

[CASEY QUOTE 3 : staff]

The team's experience across marine, small engine, and outdoor power equipment means customers can bring in a boat motor, a lawn tractor, or a snow blower and get the same standard of work from the same shop.

The brand mix Reyco carries is not accidental. Mercury and Princecraft cover the marine side of a region where boating runs from ice-out in April to freeze-up in October, and where engine reliability on a remote lake matters more than it does closer to a city with short travel times to a dealer. Toro and Cub Cadet handle snow loads that northern Ontario winters produce in volume. Echo handheld tools suit homeowners and contractors working on properties with significant forested land. Hisun UTVs fill a practical gap for rural customers outside the city who need utility vehicles for property work. The combination covers what Reyco's customers actually use, in a climate and geography that makes each of those categories a real purchase rather than a seasonal impulse.

[CASEY QUOTE 4 : brand range]

Small Engine Service Sault Ste. Marie Has Relied On for Decades

Reyco Marine has been a fixture of the Sault Ste. Marie community for decades, serving customers from across the city and the broader Algoma region. The shop's location on White Oak Drive puts it within easy reach for city customers, and the brand lineup covers most of what a homeowner, contractor, or boater in the area needs in a single stop.

Much of Reyco's business comes from repeat customers, many of whom have been bringing their equipment to White Oak Drive for years. Some started as young homeowners buying their first snow blower and return now with boats, UTVs, and lawn equipment as their needs have grown. That kind of customer relationship is common in a city the size of Sault Ste. Marie, where word-of-mouth carries weight and a poor service experience does not stay quiet. Reyco's reputation has been built on direct work: the right repair, the right part, at a price that reflects the local market.

[CASEY QUOTE 5 : customer experience]

[CASEY QUOTE 7 : community]

For Sault Ste. Marie customers, the practical advantage of a shop like Reyco is proximity and depth of coverage. Sending a motor south for service means weeks of downtime during the season. Ordering parts without a dealer relationship means waiting on freight. Reyco's White Oak Drive location keeps those delays short, and its authorised dealer status means warranty work stays local, parts arrive through manufacturer channels, and the technicians working on the equipment are trained for the brands they service.

A New Website to Match the Operation

The new reycomarine.com gives customers a clearer picture of what Reyco carries, where to book service, and how to reach the team. Pages are organised by equipment category, with contact details for service bookings and parts inquiries.

[CASEY QUOTE 6 : website/future]

The website was designed and built by GLV Marketing, a Sault Ste. Marie marketing and AI agency.
